Introduction

Welcome Message from the Dean

Dear fellow scholars,

On behalf of the Office of International Cooperation and Exchange (ICE) and the International Students & Scholars Center (ISSC), I welcome you to Tsinghua University.

Since its founding in 1911, Tsinghua University has embraced countless international scholars. Every year, over 6000 international scholars (visiting researchers, professors, and lecturers) and accompanying family members from more than 70 countries live in the Tsinghua community, making significant contributions to the university.

ISSC, established in 2016, aims to promote exchange among international students and scholars, and to enhance their experiences and integration on campus and also with the greater community. The staff at ISSC are ready to help you in dealing with administrative issues and answer inquiries related to visa matters, family, employment, or cultural exchange. ISSC will also facilitate and organize activities and programs through which you will have an opportunity to make valuable social connections and become acquainted with the resources available at Tsinghua. I hope that through our efforts, ISSC can help make your stay here enjoyable and productive.

This handbook has been created by ISSC to provide you with useful information both before and after your arrival at Tsinghua. I hope you will find it useful.

I, together with my colleagues at ICE and ISSC, wish you all the best in the pursuit of your educational and personal goals. I look forward to greeting you on campus.

Dr. LI Jinliang
Dean of the Office of International Affairs
Director of the International Students & Scholars Center
Tsinghua University

Orientation Program

At the beginning of each semester an Orientation program is arranged by ISSC for new international scholars. The Orientation is a good opportunity to understand the university, the policies related to your visa and other formalities, as well as finding out the information that will help you settle into your new life easily. A campus tour is also included, where you will be taken to the places that you are likely to make trips to on a daily basis during your time at Tsinghua.

About Tsinghua University

Tsinghua University is headquartered in Tsinghua Yuan, in the northwestern part of Beijing. Campus amenities include numerous dining cafeterias and restaurants, supermarkets, a large student dormitory area, exercise and outdoor sports facilities, libraries, a post office, banks, and other services.

The University was established in 1911, originally under the name "Tsinghua Xuetang". The school was renamed "Tsinghua School" in 1912. The university section was founded in 1925. The name "National Tsinghua University" was adopted in 1928.

The faculty has always greatly valued the interaction between Chinese and Western cultures, the sciences and humanities, and the ancient and modern. Tsinghua scholars Wang Guowei, Liang Qichao, Chen Yinke and Zhao Yuanren, known as the renowned "Four Tutors" in the Institute of Chinese Classics, advocated this belief and had a profound impact on Tsinghua's later development.

In 1937, due to the War of Resistance against the Japanese Invasion, Tsinghua University was forced to move to Kunming, in Yunnan province and join with Peking University and Nankai University to form the Southwest Associated University. In 1946 the University was moved back to its original location in Beijing.

After the founding of the People's Republic of China, During the nationwide restructuring of universities and colleges undertaken in 1952, the University was molded into a polytechnic institute focusing on engineering. Mr. Jiang Nanxiang became President of the University. He made significant contributions in leading Tsinghua to become the national center for training outstanding engineers and scientists.

Since China opened up to the world in 1978, Tsinghua University has developed into a comprehensive research university at a breathtaking pace. At present, the University has 20 schools and 54 departments with faculties including science, engineering, humanities, law, medicine, history, philosophy, economics, management, education and art. The University has now over 46,200 students, including 15,636 undergraduates and 30,564 graduate students. As one of China's most renowned universities, Tsinghua has become an important institution for fostering talent and scientific research. Offering students, faculty and staff a superior living, learning, teaching and research environment, Tsinghua has 7 libraries, 6 public teaching buildings, 337 research institutes, and many different schools and departments.

The University Library has a floor space of 70,000 square meters and holds a collection of over 4,912,000 volumes. In addition, nearly 70,000 full-text electronic journals as well as hundreds of resource documents and a large collection of audio-video materials are accessible at the University Library and at six departmental libraries. An extensive electronic online retrieval service is also available for students, faculty and staff. Facilities for sports, culture and recreation include the Center for Student Cultural Activities, New Tsinghua Auditorium, the Sports Center, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, and a hospital - all of which make daily life on campus both enjoyable and convenient (data from Tsinghua official website:

<http://www.tsinghua.edu.cn>).

The educational philosophy of Tsinghua is to "train students with integrity". Among over 120,000 students who have graduated from Tsinghua since its founding are many outstanding scholars, eminent entrepreneurs and great statesmen remembered and respected by their Chinese fellow citizens.

With the motto of "Self-Discipline and Social Commitment" and the spirit of "Actions Speak Louder than Words", Tsinghua University is dedicated to the well-being of Chinese society and to global development.

Campus Tour

Auditorium 大礼堂

Located at the heart of the oldest area on Tsinghua campus is the imposing auditorium. Mixing Greek and Roman architectural styles, the 1,200-seat auditorium has a rounded roof, a brass gate, and four large white marble columns. It possesses few design embellishments; its magnificence is evident in its simplicity.

Construction on what is now one of the favorite buildings on campus began in September, 1917 and was completed March, 1920. The auditorium was one of the four major building projects carried out by Tsinghua School, together with Tsinghua Xuetang, the old library, and the gymnasium.

In these early days, the Auditorium was the largest of its kind at a university in China, and could seat the entire faculty, staff and student body for school assemblies.

Gong Zi Ting 工字厅 (Tsinghua Garden)

Tsinghua Garden, which has served as the university's main office for many years, was designed in the traditional Qing dynasty style and is fashioned with painted corridors connecting every room. Due to its distinctive characteristics, it has become a major attraction on campus.

The more widely used name of the garden is Gong Zi Ting - which in Chinese means H-Shaped House. Viewed from above, the central part of the house resembles the shape of the letter 'H', with its two halls in the front and back connected by a short corridor in the middle.

The garden started out as the residence of a Qing emperor's brother's family. In the early days of Tsinghua School, founded in 1911, the garden was used as the school's first head office building. Student enrollment lists were posted on the wall at the front gate. For a number of years, the east room in the front section was used as the music center, the west room as the teachers' reading room and the rear section to accommodate distinguished foreign guests. For example, the great Indian poet Rabindranath Tagore stayed here when he visited China in 1924.

The Old Gate 二校门

The Old Gate was built in 1909. In May of that year, the Qing dynasty government approved the application from the Department of Foreign Affairs to establish a school in the suburbs of Beijing. Tsinghua Garden was chosen as the site for the school. The Old Gate was the main entrance to the school campus at that time.

Back then, the Old Gate was not only stately and graceful, but also heavily guarded. In those years, freshmen and sophomore students were not allowed to go beyond the gate without permission from school authorities. In addition, for the sake of preserving the sanctity of the learning environment, people not on official school business were forbidden to pass through the gate.

In 1933, after expansion of the residential area, the school's enclosing wall was moved further out. A new gate, now Tsinghua's West Gate, became the new main entrance. Ever since, the original gate has been called Er Xiao Men (which means "the second school gate"). The Old Gate was demolished in the 1960's. Financed by Tsinghua University alumni, it was rebuilt in 1991, and follows the original design.

Sundial 日晷

The stone sundial, an ancient "clock" donated by the Class of 1920, stands at the southern end of Tsinghua's grass quadrangle. At the base of the sundial is an inscription in Chinese that translates into: "Action speaks louder than words." The Latin version of this famous phrase is beneath the Chinese characters, together with the date the sundial was erected.

People in ancient China used sundials as a simple way to tell the time of day. The time is indicated by the location of the sun's shadow of the dial on the face of the "clock." For example, at 12 o'clock noon, when the sun is due south, the shadow falls due north.

Tsinghua School 清华学堂

Tsinghua School was one of the main buildings of the school in its early years. This two floor German-style building was at one time a student dormitory. The west wing was built between 1909 and 1911, and the east wing in 1916. The building's total area is 4650m<sup>2</sup>.

The four Chinese characters painted above the main entrance of the building read "Tsinghua School", the original name of Tsinghua University when it was founded. The inscription was made by NA Tong, a great scholar and Grand Minister late in the Qing Dynasty.

Since the past few decades, Tsinghua school has been used as a teaching building where students take classes.

Shui Mu Tsinghua 水木清华

Shui Mu Tsinghua, which means "clear water and trees surrounding Tsinghua," is one of the most captivating spots in the Tsinghua garden area. Known as "a garden within a garden", Shui Mu Tsinghua is located near the rear gate of the H-shaped Gong Zi Ting and is often compared by Tsinghua students to the Garden of Harmonious Interests in Beijing's famed Summer Palace.

Shui Mu Tsinghua has many unique charms. The waterside area is beautiful to visit in every season, with a variety of trees growing alongside unusual rock formations surrounding a pond of clear, calm water. On the northern bank are two ancient, elegant pavilions. The four Chinese characters, "Shui Mu Tsing Hua," painted on the top of the main gate, are copied from an inscription by Emperor Kang Xi.

The Main Building 主楼

The Main Building, located in the eastern area of campus, is composed of three sections covering a total area of 76,871 square meters. Its original design from the 1950's was first conceptualized by Tsinghua students and professors, and for more than 30 years the Main Building housed many departments, including the Architecture, Automation, Computer Science, Mathematics, and Foreign Languages departments. Many significant contributions to both teaching and scientific research have taken place within its walls. Today, the central and eastern sections are home to the Automation, Computer Science and Technology, and Electronic Engineering departments, while the western section mainly houses the Department of Electrical Engineering and Applied Electrical Technology.

About Beijing

Beijing is a vibrant, modern city with a long and rich history. Since first becoming a capital city around 3,000 years ago, Beijing has been at the center of many dynasties and kingdoms.

The city has many places of historic interest and scenic beauty, including the Forbidden City - the largest and best-preserved ancient architectural complex in the world; the Temple of Heaven - where Ming and Qing emperors performed solemn rituals for bountiful harvests; the Summer Palace - the emperors' magnificent garden retreat; the Ming tombs--the stately and majestic mausoleums of 13 Ming Dynasty emperors; and the world-renowned Badaling section of the Great Wall. Since the founding of the People's Republic of China in 1949, large-scale construction has brought great change to Beijing, adding even more interesting attractions to this mysterious old city.

As the educational and technological center of China, Beijing is home to the Chinese Academy of Sciences, the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences and more than 70 institutions of higher education and research. Students flock to Beijing to attend some of the nation's most famous universities, including Tsinghua University and Peking University. Each year, numerous domestic and international academic conferences are held in Beijing. Zhongguancun - known as China's 'Silicon Valley' - is Beijing's pulsing heart for information technology research and development, and is less than one mile away from Tsinghua.

Visa & Residence Permit

Visa

International scholars visiting or working in China must hold an ordinary passport with either Visa F (for short-term visitors only), Visa Z or Visa R. Chinese visa authorities abroad include Chinese embassies, consulates, visa offices, and the consular departments of the office of the Commissioner of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of China.

- Visa F: International scholars who are planning a short term-visit to Tsinghua (for instance on an academic exchange or to attend an academic conference) for a time duration of less than 3 months without payment are generally required to apply for an F Visa before entry into China. Since the maximum stay under an F Visa is usually 90 days, applicants for this visa need to have a clear idea about their entry and exit date of their intended stay in China. After the host department/school/institution of Tsinghua University submits the application form to the Office of International Affairs, the Invitation Letter will be issued, which is required to apply for an F Visa. This application process generally takes 3 to 5 working days. The host department and the applicant are strongly advised to apply for the Invitation Letter at least 4 weeks before the scholar's scheduled arrival, so that the scholar has sufficient time to subsequently apply for his or her visa at a Chinese consulate or embassy in his or her home country or another designated country.

- Visa Z: International scholars employed by Tsinghua should follow the procedures to obtain a Notification Letter of Foreigner's Work Permit from the Beijing Administration of Foreign Expert Affairs. It would take approximately 6-8 weeks for the host department to apply. After receiving the e-copy of the Notification Letter of Foreigner's Work Permit the International scholar, as well as their accompanying family members, shall apply for a Visa Z (for scholars) and a Visa S1 (for family members) at Chinese consulates or embassies in their home country or another country where they have resided for more than 3 months.

•Visa R:For visa and residence Permit affairs at Tsinghua please contact the Division of Global Scholars ( 引智办公室 ).

embassy of the scholar's home country in Beijing, please provide an official letter or envelope issued by the embassy with the date they obtain the passport; if the new passport is posted to the scholar, please provide the postmarked envelope to prove the date of receipt; if the new passport is obtained abroad, please provide the copy of the passport page with the entry stamp into China to prove this entry date.

If there are any changes to personal information such as change to their work position, the scholar is required to update the information on their Work Permit before applying for an extension.

Social Insurance

Foreigners working in China with Work Permits need to participate Chinese social insurance, and benefit in accordance with the law. The insurance includes basic retirement insurance benefits, basic medical insurance, work injury insurance, unemployment insurance and maternity insurance. In Tsinghua, the social insurance is processed by the Human Resource Office. Foreigners covered in the social insurance system shall be entitled to social benefits in accordance with the law once the qualifying conditions are met

Leaving China:

- 1) Foreigners who leave China before reaching the statutory pension age and plans to return at some stage in the future, their social insurance individual account can be kept, and reactivated once returning to China, upon written application to close the social insurance account from the person in question, the proceeds in the individual account can be paid lump-sum to the said person.
- 2) Foreigners who leave China and do not intend to return should contact the Human Resources Office to request for their previously extracted portions of their salary, such as retirement or housing insurance can be transferred to them before departure.

Leaving the University

Terminating the contract

A scholar who terminates his or her contract with Tsinghua University is required to cancel the Work Permit and the Residence Permit within 10 days of leaving the Tsinghua position, and (if necessary) to apply to transfer his or her visas to a Stay Permit (always valid for a maximum of 30 days). Before leaving the university, all scholars are reminded to make sure that they have returned all books borrowed from the library, cancelled their University ID card, settled any accounts concerning accommodation, and completed any other procedures required by University regulations.

Life at Tsinghua

Transportation from Beijing International Airports to Tsinghua

Beijing Capital Airport

The Beijing Capital International Airport is about 35 kilometers away from the Tsinghua campus.

Shuttle Bus

There are several shuttle bus routes going from the airport into downtown. The nearest one to Tsinghua is Route 5 to Zhongguancun. The ticket costs ¥30 RMB. You can take Route 5 to the terminal Tsinghua University Science Park (TusPark) station, nearby the east gate of Tsinghua University. This is more economical than taking a taxi directly from the airport; however, it is a little complicated for a first-time visitor to Beijing and is not recommended if you have a substantial amount of luggage. For detailed information about the airport shuttle, please refer to: <http://en.bcia.com.cn/traffic/airbus/index.shtml>

Taxi

Official taxi stations are just outside the ground-floor gate at each terminal. The total fee from the airport to Tsinghua is approximately ¥120 RMB (depending on traffic). This includes a highway toll fee ( ¥10 RMB), which is not displayed on the price meter. If you would like a taxi receipt, please ask for a 'Fa Piao' ( 发票 ). You are advised to only take a registered taxi cab instead of unlicensed, private vehicles that may offer you a ride. For detailed information, please refer to: <http://en.bcia.com.cn/traffic/taxi/index.shtml>

Airport express

There is a light rail airport express running between the airport and downtown. You can take the train from the airport to Sanyuanqiao subway station, where you can take line 10 to Xizhimen, and then change to line 13 and get off at Wudaokou station. This station is about 2 kilometers southeast of the East Gate of Tsinghua University. for more detailed information, please refer to: <http://en.bcia.com.cn/traffic/express/index.shtml>

Beijing Daxing International Airport

The Beijing Daxing International Airport is about 65 kilometers away from the Tsinghua campus. The airport was opened in 2019. A taxi from the airport to Tsinghua will cost around 230 RMB. The shuttle bus stop is quite far from Tsinghua University. Subway and rail express transportation is also available. For specific information, please refer to the official website of Daxing International Airport <https://www.bdia.com.cn/>.

Accommodation and Housing

The University provides on-campus apartments for international scholars. These include one-bedroom, two-bedroom, and three-bedroom apartments. For those coming to Beijing for the first time, living on campus is highly advisable. It is quite difficult to find a suitable apartment once you arrive, and you may need to furnish it and also undertake registration procedures yourself off campus, such as obtaining an Accommodation Registration Form from the local police station.

Because the availability of apartments in Tsinghua is limited, you should ask your host department at Tsinghua to apply for one on your behalf as soon as possible.

If you find an appropriate apartment off-campus to rent, you are free to move there.

The most important thing for foreigners both living on- and off-campus is to always be registered at your local police station through the obtaining of an Accommodation Registration Form ( 住宿登记表 ).

Please refer to the detailed information about Accommodation Registration in the previous section.

Tips for Living on Campus

Water, gas and electricity bills: If you live on campus you are responsible for paying for your own water, gas and electricity usage.

Tap water is not drinkable in Beijing and should first be boiled before consumed. If spending more than a few months in Beijing it is recommended that you either purchase bottled water or a water tank during your time in Beijing. For information on local water suppliers on campus please contact service staff at the ISSC.

Campus ID Card

After completing the employment registration at the Personnel Administration and Service Center, Human Resources Office at Zhao Lan Yuan, then the Campus ID card can be issued.

You need to bring your passport. A photo will be taken. Please wear a dark colored top with collar.

The working hours: 08:00 - 12:00, 13:00 - 17:00, Monday to Friday

The campus ID card is a multi-purpose card essential for daily life on campus. It is your canteen card (usable in designated teacher canteens), and can also be used in the campus supermarkets. Also, most libraries and some departments will require you to show or swipe you campus card in order to enter. You can also get a teacher's price when you buy a ticket for the swimming pool, and buy tickets for performances at the New Auditorium and Music Hall.

If you lose your campus ID card, you will need to call 62782323 to report the loss, so the money in the card can be locked. You can then go to the Human Resources Office at Zhao Lan Yuan ( 人事处办事大厅, 照澜院 )

If you campus ID card is expired and you need to renew it, please make sure first that your contract with Tsinghua has been renewed and then you can go to Human Resources Office at Zhao Lan Yuan ( 照澜院人事处 办事大厅 ) to obtain a new card.

How to recharge your campus ID card

You first need to connect your bank account with your university ID card number. To do that, you need to apply at the bank with an official letter issued by your department. After this you can recharge your ID card through your bank account.

To do this, you need to find one of the following two kinds of machines on campus. The smaller machines built into the wall are found at the entrances of most canteens such as He Yuan ( 荷园 ), Lan Yuan ( 澜园 ) and Guan Chou Yuan ( 观畴园 ). The bigger machine placed on the floor is on the first floor of the Financial Office (opposite to the Ting Tao Yuan 听涛园 canteen).

This is how you transfer money from your bank card to your university ID card:

How to apply for a certificate of employment and salary online

Note:

1. Currently the whole application process needs to be completed in Chinese
2. The certificate will only be given in Chinese

Step 1:

Log onto the Chinese interface of Info "清华大学信息门户" using the following address:

<http://info.tsinghua.edu.cn>

log in to Info with your campus ID number (用户名) and your password (密码).

Step 2:

Click on the online services button (在线服务系统)

Step 3:

For the purposes of applying for a loan, acquiring foreign exchange, or declaration of supporting spouse/children to go abroad, please click on the circled option 1 below.

For the purpose of applying for a visa for foreign countries for personal affairs (such as tourism, visiting relatives/friends), please click on the circled option 2 below.

Note: If you need an employment certificate to apply for a visa for a business trip, you will need to undertake the “going abroad for business trip” procedure via another system. Please consult the staff in charge of foreign affairs in your department for details, or visit the website of Division of Visiting Programs Abroad, International Office: <http://gjcbg.cic.tsinghua.edu.cn/gjc/cgcj.jsp>

Step 4:

Fill in the required information online (in Chinese). Click “提交” to submit.

Note:

if you are going overseas for business trips, please visit the website of the Division of Visiting Programs Abroad, International Office for an employment certificate: <http://gjcbg.cic.tsinghua.edu.cn/gjc/cgcj.jsp>

Internet Access

Activate a new account

Once you have obtained your campus ID card, you can go to the Network Center to establish and top up your internet account, and activate it prior to first use.

Location: Room A128, Lee Shau Kee Science and Technology Building (李兆基科技大楼)
Internet office working hours: 08:00-12:00, 13:00-17:00 on workdays.

Contact information: for any issue regarding the school network, you can contact the Network Center at 62784859, or email them at support@tsinghua.edu.cn.

Accessing the Internet

Once your account is activated, internet service is easily accessible in your apartment and around campus via LAN ports and wireless network (network name is Tsinghua).

- To login, launch your web browser and type in <http://net.tsinghua.edu.cn>, key in your ID and password.

What does the university internet service provide?

- 1) A dynamic IPv4 address
- 2) 1 user account
- 3) Up to 3 connections using the same user account
- 4) A mail.tsinghua.edu.cn mailbox
- 5) 12 Yuan for 50GB of data per month (additional download data may be purchased at the rate of 1 Yuan/GB)

- To manage your account (such as to disconnect a particular connection or to check your current balance), please sign in via <http://usereg.tsinghua.edu.cn>

- To help users manage their data usage, the school has also come up with a software, TUNET, which caters for both computers and mobile devices, can be download via <http://its.tsinghua.edu.cn>.

For further network related information, please refer to: <http://its.tsinghua.edu.cn/column/jgfwzn> (currently only in Chinese)

Money and Finances

In China today, the vast majority of payments are made via two mobile payment providers:

WeChat Pay and Alipay. Paying with cash and card, especially in big cities, is not a common occurrence anymore. While WeChat Pay and Alipay both offer the same basic functions, such as instant payment, receiving of money, and ordering and paying for taxis, it is recommended to have both Alipay and WeChat pay, as in some instances one payment method will be preferred over the other by a vendor or online service.

WeChat ( 微信 )

WeChat is similar to Line or WhatsApp, and is the main form of daily online communication in China. Once you have set up your WeChat account, you can set up your 'WeChat wallet' to use WeChat Pay. Only Chinese bank cards can be linked. When linking your Chinese bank card, make sure that the name you input in WeChat Wallet is exactly the same as that on your Chinese bank card, otherwise it will not link properly.

Alipay ( 支付宝 )

The same as for WeChat pay, you need to link up your bank card. You can even top up your Campus ID card via Alipay. Alipay is also used for making payments on Taobao, China's 'ebay'. It also has an English version.

Financial scams

Because in China payment is generally made through these mobile payment apps, being aware of one's own personal phone security is paramount. This is especially the case for WeChat, where you will have many friend contacts. As a general rule, do not add strangers on WeChat and do not respond to suspicious messages or open links, as this could leave you vulnerable to your details being used by others. When purchasing items you will either be required to scan the vendor's QR code or show your QR code to the vendor. When displaying your QR code or inputting your payment password, be mindful of anyone near you who could see and use your information.

Mobile Phone Services

In China, there are three main telecommunication carriers: China Mobile, China Unicom and China Telecom. All three carriers have branches on campus:

Campus Dining

Canteens and Restaurants on Campus

As for food options available on campus, Tsinghua has a large number of canteens, supermarkets and cafes that offer many different food and beverages. Furthermore, at an average price per meal of around 10 RMB, food at the canteen is a very affordable option for eating in Beijing.

There are 8 canteens available for staff on campus. The campus canteens have very regulated opening hours. Most canteens for example are open for dinner strictly between 5pm and 7pm, so please be aware of this when planning your canteen trips. Generally, a canteen card/Tsinghua ID card is required to pay at a canteen, as only a few cafeterias accept cash. The meal serving times are as below.

The way to get food in the canteens is very straightforward. Each canteen will have many different food booths lined alongside each other. You choose the food booth that you like and then point to the service attendant which dishes you want. Then the service attendant will program in the price onto the machine and you swipe your Staff ID card on top to make the payment.

Other Options on-Campus

The on-campus supermarkets located in B1 of the Student Service Center, B1 of Guan Chou Yuan canteen and Zhaolanyuan provide bread, cakes, hamburgers, instant noodles and other prepared food and drinks. The supermarkets are a good option if you arrive back on campus later after the canteens have closed for the day. All supermarkets on campus are listed below:

On Campus

Within Tsinghua campus, riding bicycles and walking are the most common modes of transportation. If you often travel around the campus, or go shopping or dining nearby, it is generally recommended that you purchase or rent a bicycle. A bicycle license is not required. Please note that riding a motorcycle with a gas engine is not permitted on campus.

There is also the Campus Shuttle Bus available. The easily spotable purple colored mini bus has 2 routes around the campus. The operating times are 7:20~18:00 on weekdays, and 8:30~17:30 on weekends. You can board the bus anywhere along the route simply by hailing the driver from a safe distance. Bus fare: free for Tsinghua staff with ID card ( ¥2 -3 RMB without campus ID card).

How to buy train/plane tickets in China

Train tickets

China railway tickets can be bought 30 days before departure using the official website, and 28 days in advance at railway stations and ticket outlets. Below are several options for how to book:

At the train station or at a ticket outlet:

Tickets can be bought directly from train stations, however, you generally need to brave long queues. If possible, it is recommended to purchase train tickets in advance from the numerous ticket outlets located throughout Beijing. Generally, each local neighborhood will have a small train ticket purchasing office nearby. There is currently a ticket outlet located in Tsinghua in the Zhaolanyuan area of campus. There, you can book directly without queues. Please note that if you choose to get your ticket printed at the outlet, a 5RMB fee will be incurred; however this is recommended because currently foreigners cannot use the automated ticket printing machines at train stations and therefore need to wait in the long general inquiry queues at the station to get their ticket. Remember to bring your original passport when booking. Tickets can be bought on behalf of others by bringing their original passport.

Via official website (12306):

Railway Customer Service Center Of China (12306.cn) is the key platform for buying train tickets in China. Currently there is no English website or app, so a good grasp of Chinese is required. You also need to register with a Chinese phone number and pay with Chinese bank card, Alipay or Wechat. Be aware that your name on the booking system must match exactly the one on your ID. Spaces and symbols (hyphens) from foreign languages are not allowed.

Note: Foreigners have to go to any railway station to complete identity verification after five purchases online.

Train and plane tickets

Via Trip.com:

Trip.com Group Limited is a provider of travel services including accommodation reservation, transportation ticketing, packaged tours and corporate travel management. It is the English version of 携程旅行网, a major online reservation company of China. For those who cannot understand Chinese, or wish to pay with an international credit card (Visa, Mastercard, JCB, American Express), Trip.Com is a good option. Train tickets once purchased can be picked up at the station or delivered to your chosen address. All that is required to purchase train tickets is your valid ID and your ID number.

Via Alipay:

Another convenient option for purchasing train and plane tickets (including international plane tickets) is through the Alipay app. Once you have a Chinese bank card and linked it to the Alipay app, you can purchase tickets through the app, via fliggy.com (飞猪). But note that the system is all in Chinese.

Beijing City Transportation Smart Card

(北京市政交通一卡通)

The Beijing City Transportation Smart Card (北京市政交通一卡通) can be used to take the subway, airport express train, buses and taxis in Beijing. Each card requires a CNY20 refundable deposit. After that you can top up the card freely. The card does not require any ID or registration to purchase, so if misplaced, you will not be able to get the money on the card refunded. Buses are the cheapest form of transport - paying with the Smart Card on buses is about 50 percent cheaper than paying with cash.

Subway

The nearest subway stations to Tsinghua University are Wudaokou Station near East Gate on Subway Line 13, Qing Hua Dong Lu Xi Kou near the East Gate on Line 15, Yuan Ming Yuan near the West Gate and the Bei Da Dong Men Station near the South West Gate on Subway Line 4. To reach most places in the municipal Beijing area, the fastest solution is typically to

Where to buy & top up

first get to the subway station nearest to you and then take a bus, share bike, taxi or walk to your destination. The subway fare costs around ¥3-7 RMB for a single ticket depending on the distance travelled.

Most frequent users of the Beijing subway now use the Easy Pass (Yitongxing 易通行) app, the official online Beijing Subway payment platform. Via the app, users can simply provide a QR code to enter/exit the subway and the trip cost is deducted directly from their Alipay or WeChat upon completion of the trip, meaning that there is no need to ever top up or add money. Note that this app can only be used for the subway, not the bus network.

Medical Services

Bus

The bus network in Beijing is the most widely used and affordable means of public transportation. However, it can be quite crowded and may experience traffic congestion. Regular bus routes, such as those going downtown, start running between 05:00 – 05:30 and stop between 22:00 – 23:00. Some suburban lines may stop operation between 18:00 and 19:00. Beijing night buses (numbers 1 to 38) operate between 23:00 and 05:00 the next day. The bus stops are marked with route details in Chinese showing the route number, name of the stop you are at, all stops on the route, operating hours and the direction of the bus.

Buses will stop at each designated bus stop regardless if a passenger is disembarking or not, and the name of the upcoming stop is announced in both Chinese and English.

When using the Smart Card to take buses, you should both swipe on when entering and off when exiting the bus. The bus stops around Tsinghua are Wudaokou (五道口) near the East Gate, Qinghuayuan (清华园) near the South Gate, Lanqiying (蓝旗营) near the Southwest Gate, Qing Hua Da Xue Xi Men (清华大学西门) near the West Gate, Yuan Ming Yuan Dong Lu near the Northwest Gate, Qing Hua Fu Zhong (清华附中) near the North Gate, and Dashiqiao (大石桥) near the Northeast Gate (Zijing Gate).

Detailed information about buses passes and route maps can be found here: <http://www.bjbus.com/home/index.php> (Chinese only)

<https://www.travelchinaguide.com/package/beijing.htm>

Taxis

In China, if you find that you are seeing many empty taxis but no one is stopping for you, this is because these days most people will first pre-reserve a taxi on online platforms. By doing this, the destination address is already input into the system and you will be put in a virtual line, with wait times usually quite short. This is an easy, efficient and safe way of travelling via taxi.

To pre-reserve taxis, the most commonly used taxi hailing app is DiDi (滴滴出行). An English version of the app is also available: <https://www.didiglobal.com>. Another option is to use the DiDi interface via WeChat or Alipay.

There is a University Hospital on campus located to the north of Jin Chun Garden. It provides basic medical care to students and staff. The operating hours for consultation are: Monday - Friday, 8:00 to 12:00, 13:30 to 17:00; Saturday, 8:00 to 12:00. Emergency consultation is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Emergency treatment telephone numbers: 62799120, 62782185.

If you need to seek specialized treatment, you can go to larger hospitals off-campus. The nearest one is Peking University Third Hospital. In addition, the China-Japan Friendship Hospital, and Beijing United Family Hospital and Clinics are often chosen by many international scholars and students.

Daycare and Schooling for Children

Tsinghua has an affiliated kindergarten, primary school and high school. They are located on or adjacent to the campus. Tsinghua professors and postdocs' children may apply to attend, but the schools cannot guarantee enrollment because of limited space. Please consult the enrollment affairs office or find detailed information on the web pages below:

Libraries

The Tsinghua University library system is composed of the University Library and additional subject-oriented libraries, including those for humanities, economics and management, law, architecture, and art. The library system covers 70,000 square meters of floor space with over 4,200 seats. With a rich collection of 4,912,000 books and documents covering a vast array of subject areas, it is a comprehensive library system that also includes various online services. Among its collection of treasures are ancient Chinese and foreign books, oracles, bronze wares, calligraphy, and drawings by famous artists, indicative of the University's rich historical and humanities legacy. Over the past several decades the Tsinghua University library has been increasingly upgrading its electronic facilities.

The library has advanced information infrastructure and employs extensive electronic academic information resources, including secondary documents such as abstracts and indexes inclusive of all the current subjects on offer at the University. It also has nearly 70,000 full-text electronic academic journals, and over 6TB of resource data installed on the local server.

Through a newly adopted service function the library is bringing teachers and students closer to their targeted service and has a service-oriented information.

International scholars staying at Tsinghua for less than 3 months may apply for a short-term temporary Library Card with an official letter issued by their host department. Long-term employed international scholars working at Tsinghua for one semester or more can use their Tsinghua ID card to access the University Library and Humanities and Social Sciences Library directly, however departmental libraries have different policies, please check the library website for detailed information.

For further information, please visit:

Digital Library

Tsinghua University's virtual library is a network of information databases of internet sources related to the University, including e-books, periodicals and newspapers, conference proceedings, encyclopedias, and multimedia databases.

Sports Facilities

Indoor Facilities

There are several gyms, sports fields and swimming pools in Tsinghua. Some of them need to be booked online:

<http://info.tsinghua.edu.cn>

Tips:

1. All courts can be booked at the reception of sports gyms. But generally speaking, it is best to book online as it is faster and more convenient, thus giving you a greater chance of booking an available court space.
2. The online system is able to be accessed between 8:00 am and 22:00 pm every day.
3. The courts can only be booked 3 days in advance. Sometimes you may find as soon as the system opens, many of courts have already been occupied. That is because some of them are used for - classes or university team training, and are not available to be booked.

4. The courts in the Badminton Gym can be paid both online (should be paid within 15 minutes after you submit the application online) or at the gym. Other courts can only be paid for at their gyms. All courts should be paid at least 2 hours in advance before use. If you fail to pay in time, the booking reservation will be canceled.
5. If you want to cancel your reservation, you need to go to the reception of sports gyms at least 24 hours in advance to do so.

Tsinghua University Art Museum

The Tsinghua University Art Museum is a great place to go to appreciate Chinese culture and art in general. It was officially opened in September, 2016. It has more than 13,000 items in its collection covering six main categories: painting and calligraphy, embroidery, porcelain, furniture, bronze ware and general artwork. Most of the works come from the collection of the Academic of Arts and Design post-1956 and also from donations by Tsinghua alumni and prominent social figures.
